INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Sound the hew-gag! Play the pattle-tong!
Let the jawbone jingle!
For this is the Fourth of July.

No crumbling dynasties shall hush our noise,
No stern policeman fright our burly boys.
This is the day to make the welkin shake,
As our forefathers made their tyrants quake.

So to! Shall not all earthly things this day
Be clashed together loudly in such way
Stupendous din—stentorophonic clangs
Shall prove that patriot hearts now beat in bangs?

Let orators by millions praise the day!
Reverberating thunder split the sky.

Set fire to everything, and bang around
The whole created world to swell the sound.

Anticipate the awful crack of doom
With all the mightiest cannons' cacophonous boom;
Then swell the noise with shouts; yell, split your throats;
Add even cornets and the base drum's note!

Sound the hew-gag! Play the pattle-tong!
Let the jawbone jingle!
For this is the Fourth of July.
Make a noise!

"JAKE'S" BANNER FOURTHS.

The Adventures of a Lad Who Desired to Enjoy the Day.

He is the Hon. Jacob now, a dignified and able senator, but back in the fifties he was simply Jake to all except his grandmother, the pastor who christened him, and the teacher when school was in. His first Fourth of July, according to the recollection of cotemporaries, was celebrated in a little New England settlement composed of farmers and miners. The old folks were slow, but not so the young ones, and in 1856, there being no general celebration on the docket, the boys of Oreville voted to have one of their own. Jake was in his eighth year, and though not formally on the committee, he was around during the councils, and by a timely word named the location for the "doings."

It was a rocky hilltop on his father's land, about 300 feet above level, the most sightly and convenient spot in the vicinity. Jake felt his responsibility, young as he was, and worked like a beaver to make the affair a success. The village figured in history as a place where Washington had had cannon made, and a cannonading outfit was early attended to. Three small pieces were borrowed from among the relics treasured in the neighborhood and dragged up the steep hill. A flagpole was raised, and bough booths for shelter and refreshments invited the populace to come and make merry. Everything was complete.

Stores of fireworks, of powder, of sugar and lemons, and cakes and candies were on hand, hidden in walled up caves, and the boys of Oreville sat up all night to welcome the inhabitants that would be summoned by a sunrise salute. Then the boys resumed blank charges and the day closed with every soul in Oreville on Jake's hill.

Years passed before Jake got another chance to play a leading part in Fourth of July doings. The year following he had emigrated to another state, and spent the day wandering from crossroads to crossroads, and from postoffice to postoffice looking for the Fourth. The next year he put in hoeing corn. The year after that he held a flag for a Sunday school picnic, riding twenty miles standing up in a hay wagon loaded with fidgeting, perspiring humanity, and went home to reflect that he had endured the tortures of a twenty mile ride on lumber trucks, working like a yeoman meanwhile to keep old glory afloat, just to eat some of his mother's cake and his aunt's bread and his cousin's biscuit. The next year, however, made up for a string of eventless Fourths.

It was the occasion of the Prince of Wales' visit to America, and Jake had become a town boy in a wide awake place that got up a mock reception to a spurious highness, who made his entrance in state on a canal barge. The fantastic turnout was something gorgeous in its hideousness and in its universality. All America, including even Ah Sin and a group of his cousins, was represented in a procession that moved with floats and carriages, on foot and on horseback. Up to the last moment the aborigines were forgotten in the rage for showing foreign acquisitions. Jake was a patron of the literature of the border and an admirer of the red man, and his services were accepted without question to fill the gap in the procession. All went well, and the umber colored child of the forest received his share of homage from the crowds that reviewed the pageant.

Finally the canal bridge came in sight, with the prince standing on the edge of the barge receiving the welcome of the nations at the hands of a spokesman as each division came up. Jake saw just in time that he was a nation all in himself and must be his own spokesman, although no speech had been given him to rehearse. It occurred to him, too, that his speech must be in the Indian tongue, and he knew but one expression that he could trust himself on. Halt

THE SURF AT LONE HILL.

[Copyright, 1891. All rights reserved.]

I HAD been decided by the young people of "our set," as they referred to themselves, to include in their celebration of the Fourth an excursion to Lone Hill. Not everybody may know what the attractions of Lone Hill are, or where it is, for it is but an insignificant mound of sand a few miles to the east of Fire Island lighthouse, on the southern shore of Long Island. Beyond the smooth white beach, that is unbroken, save for inlets, for one hundred miles or more, there is little about the place to make it attractive. The idea originated with the Sawyers, or rather with young Jim Sawyer.

"It's stupid," he said, "lying around here and letting the sloop to city visitors on holidays. We're doing well enough. Let's make a holiday of the Fourth for ourselves, 'stead of working harder then than any other day."

Ably seconded by his elder sister, Nellie, Jim carried the day in his own household, and after that the "set" joined in. Henry Martin, true enough, had held back somewhat in favor of making business of the Fourth and a holiday of some other occasion, but he was overruled indignantly, and Nellie Sawyer even said one or two sharp little things about some people's small dispositions, so that Henry retreated hastily. Nellie's words might have kept him away but for two reasons: Young Jim was a firm friend and admirer of Martin, and he threatened to make it uncomfortable for Nellie if Martin was "frozen out." Martin knew that the lad's tongue would fulfill the threat, to the mortification of not only Nellie but himself as well, and therefore he ignored his wounded pride and joined with apparent heartiness in the proceedings.

Young Jim would have made up the party in the exclusive interest of his hero if he could have done that, but Nellie had her own will, too, and in this case she compelled her brother to yield to the dictates of the senior Sawyers, neither of whom understood the cause of hostilities between their children.

So when the excursionists started from the Babylon wharf at 9 o'clock on the morning of July 4, 1834, there was a rankling discontent in the heart of more than one member of the party. Three boats made up the fleet. The Sawyers' large and handsome sloop carried about twenty, among whom were all the elderly people, Nellie and Jim, and two of the young men whom Henry Martin knew to be his rivals. Henry was consigned to one of the minor boats. Although this arrangement was due to Nellie's strategy, there was a spice of dissatisfaction in her view of the situation. Just what it was, or why, is more than I can say, for the vagaries of a young woman's heart defy my comprehension and analysis. I never did understand them and I never expect to; I simply put down what I know, and among those things is the fact that Henry Martin was Nellie's favorite, and that not all of young Jim's ill advised efforts in his behalf could displace him from a high place in her affections. In fact, had it not been for Jim, Henry might have sailed in the big sloop; but it doesn't matter much, for no blunder of that well meaning boy could have affected seriously what finally came to pass on that Fourth of July, seven years ago. Just before the boats put off Jim had whispered to his hero:

"Never mind, Mart; I'll keep those duffers at bay till we get to Lone Hill, and then you watch your chance," to which Henry's reply had been a silent scowl; but he made up his mind, nevertheless, that the day should not pass before he had come to an exact understanding with Nellie; for hitherto there had been no declaration or other formal talk between them.

Arrived at Lone Hill the party went directly across the narrow sandy strip of land that prevents Great South bay from being a part of the ocean. There was a grand surf rolling away out on the beach, which at the time of the arrival of the excursionists was as wide as possible, for it was low tide. The wind freshened steadily and veered about until it came from the southeast, and the weatherwise talked of fogs and storms. Nothing interfered with the pleasure of the day, however, and preparations were begun for an outdoor dinner, provisions from home being increased by various articles secured on the spot.

Henry Martin joined earnestly in the work, and sought especially to be of assistance to or under the direction of Nellie; but Miss Nellie, with that rare tact for giving stabs with a smile and a laugh that only maidens possess, refused his services while gladly accepting those of his rivals. It proved to be of little use for him to try to assist, but he stood about with an appearance of good nature, and when dinner was finally eaten he played his part in the entertainment. There were speeches in which the American eagle fairly howled defiance and flapped her wings scornfully at Britishers; and there were explosions of crackers and firearms by Jim and his immediate companions that made their quiet loving elders wish they had staid at home. Then the party broke into little groups, and after a time, through his customary quiet persistence, Henry found an opportunity to speak to Nellie. The rising tide had hidden more than half the beach, and the still rising wind had set the breakers roaring. They stood where each incoming wave caused them to retire a little farther inland.

"I've been waiting all day for a word with you, Nellie," said Henry.

"Isn't that a grand roller?" she inquired, pointing indifferently to a wave combing and foaming as far as the eye could reach along the sands. Henry glanced at it seriously and was silent for a moment. Then he resumed:

"Nellie, you are not interested in the rollers. I know that, and you are trying to put me off. You've been trying to tease me all day"——

"Yes, I have," continued Henry with a smile, "but I admit that you have a right to tease me if you want to. But you wouldn't do so, I think, if you realized how much I care for you. You know I love you, Nellie; there's no need for me to tell you that, but you cannot know how much I love you, and perhaps the worst of it is that I can't tell you. Just let's understand each other, Nellie; if it's no more than for this minute—I thought you loved me. You do, don't you? Don't you, Nellie, dear?"

Now I happen to know that Nellie at this moment was proud of Henry's love; she loved him herself as best she could in her own way; she was happy and triumphant at once; yet, for reasons past my ken, she made this reply:

ON BOARD THE YACHT.

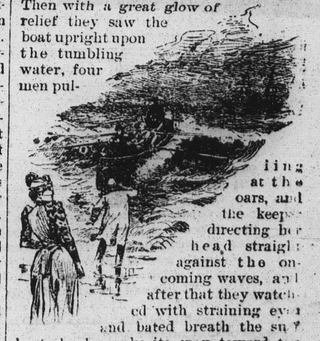
So astonished, nay, shocked, was Henry at such an answer that he jumped from his tracks as if a wave were about to ingulf him, whereat Nellie laughed. Then Henry flushed with something akin to anger.

"And that is all?" he asked; and after a slight pause, "I think we understand each other," he added, and walked rapidly away.

To everybody but Henry and Nellie the afternoon passed happily. The tide had nearly reached its height when all noticed that the horizon seaward was nearer at hand than it had been. As they watched they saw the sky slowly ... surely eat up the rolling waters, and presently across the pounding breakers a dense and gloomy fog stalked in upon the beach, and in another moment a wind driven, it had wrapped itself about Lone Hill, blotted out the Point of Woods and hidden in blank grayness all the land beyond the bay. But it made little difference to the party of excursionists; there might be necessity of waiting before venturing across the bay, but that would merely prolong the enjoyment, and so the fun went on.

It was some time between 4 and 5 o'clock, and fog and wind and tide were at their height, when a man came trudging through the gray obscurity with a message that turned the thoughts of all the party from amusement or patriotic celebration. His message and the deed it led to are well remembered along that part of Long Island, and they have taken their place in the history of the United States. The man was Keeper Baker, of the government life saving station situated at Lone Hill, and he brought word that a big vessel had stranded about half a mile east of the station. When the southeast wind gathered up the dense fog of July 4, 1834, Baker began to patrol the stretch of beach guarded by his station, and so it was that shortly after she drove in upon the sands he was able to distinguish dimly the outlines of a great boat beyond the surf, and he knew at once that all on board were in imminent peril. He did not say all this to the party of excursionists: one glance at his strong face told them that he sought a volunteer crew. He had hardly begun his hurried explanation before Henry Martin had placed himself at the keeper's side. It was but a moment, and then the keeper, followed by six stalwart men, hurried to the station.

The surf boat was already on the carriage, and loaded with all the appliances for saving life. The men dragged the heavy carriage over the sands, the broad flanges of the wheels sinking but little, and excitement of the work making the task an easy one. The whole party of excursionists followed until they, too, could distinguish now and again a dull black shadow in the fog seaward that they knew to be the hull of the stranded vessel. Then they saw the experienced keeper and his volunteer crew push the long, deep boat from the carriage to the sand and into the surf. More than one woman's heart grew faint as the valiant workers completely disappeared in the spray of the first roller that struck them. Then with a great glow of relief they saw the boat upright upon the tumbling water, four men pulling at the oars, and the keeper directing her head straight against the oncoming waves, and after that they watched with straining eyes and bated breath the surf boat slowly make its way toward the vessel, until the fog shut it wholly out of vision.



The men pulled away, and at last by the exercise of skill that accomplished marvelous deeds with small boats in a high sea, they lay alongside the stranded vessel, which proved to be the Gulf of Si...

SONOMA, JULY 4, 1891.

A BLOODY TRAGEDY.

A domestic tragedy, culminating in the wounding of a wife and the suicide of the husband, took place in Santa Rosa last Saturday night at 9 o'clock. The Democrat in its account says:

"Bang! bang! Two bright flashes lit up the deep shadow under the awning in front of Legro's feed store at the corner of Fourth and A streets.

The two reports were immediately followed by the piercing shrieks of a woman, whose form was soon seen emerging from the gloom and going towards the opposite side of A street.

Before the woman had taken many steps another flash was seen, and a man's body fell to the ground mortally wounded. As soon as the third shot was fired the woman turned as if to go back to the side of the fallen man. She was seen to stagger towards the awning post, and then turning with an agonizing cry, she made her way up Fourth street half walking and half running and supported by State Controller Colgan, who had been attracted to the scene by shots. As she passed in front of the brightly illuminated store windows, the horrified spectators of the tragedy saw that she was dripping with blood. Her face and neck were covered with the crimson current, which gushed forth in streams every step she took.

Arriving at Warboys' drug store she rushed through the door and threw herself into a chair, crying, as the blood gushed from her lips, that she was shot. The doors were closed to keep out the dense crowd, which had been attracted to the spot, and a messenger was immediately sent for a physician.

While the injured woman was making her way up Fourth street a large crowd gathered about the man, who had done the shooting and dropped to the sidewalk after the third shot was fired.

The body which was by this time rapidly stiffening in death, was that of the woman's husband. His name was D. W. Clay.

Beside the dying man lay the weapon with which the shots were fired. The muzzle of the revolver, a bulldog, 44-calibre, had been placed close to the top of the head and the bullet before entering the skull passed through the rim and crown of the large hat he wore.

When a reporter called at the home of the injured woman on Second street, the family, consisting of Mrs. A. T. P. Robinson, the mother, a sister and brother, and several small children, were wrought up to the highest pitch of excitement, and incoherent inquiries were mingled with tears of grief.

After a careful examination the physicians pronounced the wound not dangerous. One ball grazed the back of the neck, inflicting a slight abrasion of the flesh. The other entered just below the angle of the jaw, and, ranging downward, passed along inside of the jaw and came out in the mouth, breaking one tooth in its passage.

On being questioned by the reporter Mrs. Robinson said Clay and her daughter had been married about seven years and had three children, the youngest 15 months and the eldest three years.

They had not lived happily together for some time, and a month ago they parted. Clay was a shiftless man in his habits and did not furnish support for his family half the time. He was insanely jealous of his wife and a very bad man to get along with. He was jealous of her children and every one in the family. Although he drank to some extent, he was more abusive when sober. He threatened on one or two occasions to kill his wife and once when in a fit of anger drew a pistol on her. He had often choked and beat her. The family had only been in this city since April, having previously resided in Healdsburg. Clay was a native of Illinois and 38 years of age. The inquest will be held Monday.

Changes of Climate

Kill more people than is generally known. Particularly is this the case in instances where the constitution is delicate, and among our immigrant population seeking new homes in those portions of the West, and where malarial and typhoid fevers prevail at certain seasons of the year. The best preparative for a change of climate, or of diet and water which that change necessitates, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which not only fortifies the system against malaria, a variable temperature, damp and the debilitating effects of tropical heat, but is also the leading remedy for constipation, dyspepsia, liver complaint, bodily troubles specially apt to attack emigrants and visitors to regions near the equator, mariners and tourists. Whether used as a safeguard by sea voyagers, travelers by land, miners or of arriculturists in newly populated districts, this fine specific has elicited the most favorable testimony.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a Bilious Look, if your stomach be disordered you have a Dyspeptic Look and if your Kidneys be affected you have a Tinched Look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alternative and Tonic and acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, Blotches, Boils and gives a good complexion. Sold at Ed. Wegner's Drug Store. 50c per bottle.

-GLEN ELLEN GOSSIP-

Mrs. Chas. Poppe and daughters visited the good people of Sonoma last Monday.

B. P. Ephlin has secured the agency of the Port Costa Lumber Company.

The installation of officers of Glen Ellen Parlor, N. S. G. W., will take place Saturday evening, July 11th.

About two hundred Foresters from San Francioco were up last Sunday enjoying themselves in the park.

Music, both vocal and instrumental, is largely indulged in every evening by our townspeople and visitors.

The weather the past week has been red-hot at this place, the thermometer registering as high as 110 degrees in the shade.

D. W. Folger of San Francisco, formerly owner of the Lang farm near this place, is spending a week's vacation in Glen Ellen.

Tom Ellis, a prominent Native Son of Sonoma, was in town Sunday. Whoop 'em up for the Fourth of July celebration, boys. We'll be thar.

The Los Gallicos school will give an entertainment and hop to-night for the benefit of the organ fund. It is for a good purpose and all should attend.

V. L. Pieratt, a young and enterprising fruit-grower of this place, brought us a sample of his Royal Ann cherries last Monday. Of course they were duly sampled, appreciated and disappeared from view on very short notice. Mr. Pieratt intends making an exhibit of fruit at the World's Fair.

WIDE AWAKE.

Ordinance No. 41.

An Ordinance to provide a system for the Assessment, Levy and Collection of City Taxes in the City of Sonoma.

Section 1. It shall be the duty of the City Assessor, between the first day of May and the first day of August in each year to ascertain the names of all taxable inhabitants and all property within said city subject to taxation, except such as is required to be assessed by the State Board of Equalization, and he must assess such property to the person by whom it was claimed or owned, or in whose possession or control it was at 12 o'clock M. of the first day of May preceding. He must make out a true list alphabetically arranged of all taxable property, describing therein the property assessed, the names of the persons to whom it was assessed and the value thereof, and stating all other matters required to be stated in such lists by County Assessors, and complete the Assessment Book, verified by his oath, and deliver the same to the City Clerk on or before the first day of August.

The City Assessor shall be guided by, and follow the Sonoma County Assessor's Assessment for the same year, as far as practicable. He must, however, note all changes of property which may have occurred between the first Monday in March and the first day in May and correct any error or mistake made by, and list all property overlooked by the said County Assessor.

Section 2. The City Assessor must collect the taxes on all personal property when in his opinion said taxes are not a lien on real property, at the time of making the assessment or at any time before the first day of August, and he shall be governed as to the amount of such taxes to be by him collected by the rate of the previous year. The amount of such taxes must be noted opposite the names of each person from whom such taxes have been collected. All taxes on such personal property not collected by the City Assessor shall be collected by the City Tax Collector within ten days after the first day of August in each year by seizure and sale of any personal property owned by the person against whom the tax is assessed. The provisions of sections 3791 to 3796 inclusive of the Political Code shall apply to such seizure and sale.

Section 3. The powers and duties of the City Assessor shall be the same as those prescribed by County Assessors in Title IX, Chapters III and VIII of the Political Code, except as the same may be otherwise provided for in the act of the Legislature of the State of California, providing for the incorporation and government of municipal corporations of the sixth class, approved March 3d, 1883, or by ordinance.

Section 4. The Board of Trustees of said City, upon due notice thereof being given, shall meet on the second Monday of August at 10 o'clock A. M. in each year and sit as a Board of Equalization and equalize the assessment roll as provided in section 872 of said municipal government act, and may adopt by resolution such rules as they may deem expedient. But no reduction must be made in the valuation of property, unless the party affected thereby or his agent makes and files with said Board a written application therefor, verified by his oath, showing the facts upon which such reduction is sought. The said Board must thereupon examine on oath the applicant or his agent touching the value of the property of such person, and may subpoena witnesses, and hear and take such evidence in relation to the subject pending as in its discretion it may deem proper. The so corrected list for each year shall be the assessment roll for such tax for said year. It shall be certified to by the Clerk, who shall be present and act as Clerk of the Board of Equalization.

Section 5. The Board of Trustees of said city must on the second Monday of September in each year fix the rate of city taxes, and levy the same upon the taxable property in said city, not exceeding fifty cents for the general fund, and not exceeding fifteen cents for the sewer fund, on each one hundred dollars of property. Upon the completion of the assessment roll of any of the taxes of said city and the levying of the tax thereon, the Clerk shall apportion the taxes upon such assessment roll and make out and deliver to the Tax Collector of said city a tax list in the usual form, taking his receipt therefor.

Section 6. All taxes assessed, together with the percentages imposed for delinquency, shall constitute liens on the property assessed from and after the first Monday in March in each year, in the manner provided in sections 3716, 3717 and 3718 of the Political Code, which liens shall be enforced by suit in the proper Court, as hereinafter provided.

Section 7. Within ten days after the receipt of the assessment book the Tax Collector of said city must publish a notice in a newspaper published in said city for two consecutive weeks, or post the same in not less than three public places, specifying:

I. That the taxes on all personal property secured by real property and one-half of the taxes on real property will be due and payable on the first Monday in October, and will be delinquent on the third Monday of November next thereafter at 6 o'clock P. M., and that unless paid prior thereto fifteen per cent will be added to the amount thereof, and that if said one-half be not paid before the first Monday in February next at 6 o'clock P. M., an additional five per cent will be added thereto.

II. That the remaining one half of the taxes on all real property will be payable on and after the first Monday of January next, and will be delinquent on the first Monday in February thereafter at 6 o'clock P. M., and that unless paid prior thereto five per cent will be added to the amount thereof, and that said liens will attach after the first Monday in March at 6 o'clock P. M.

III. That all taxes may be paid at the time the first installment, as herein provided, is due and payable.

IV. The times and place at which payment of taxes may be made. The City Tax Collector must mark the date of payment of any tax, or the several partial payments, as the case may be, in the assessment book opposite the name of the person paying, and give him a receipt specifying the amount of assessment and the tax, or part of tax paid, and the amount remaining unpaid, if any, with a description of the property assessed.

Section 8. On the third Monday in November of each year at 6 o'clock P. M. all municipal taxes then unpaid, except the last installment of the real property taxes, are delinquent, and thereafter the City Tax Collector must collect for the use of said city an addition of fifteen per cent thereon; provided that if they be not paid before the first Monday in February next succeeding at 6 o'clock P. M. he shall collect an addition of five per cent thereon. On the first Monday of February of each year at 6 o'clock P. M. all the unpaid portion of the remaining one-half of the taxes on real property are delinquent, and thereafter the City Tax Collector must collect for the use of said city an addition of five per cent thereon. At the time specified he must deposit the delinquent tax list with the City Clerk who must carefully compare the same with the Assessment Book, and credit the Tax Collector with the total amount of taxes so returned unpaid and make a settlement with him for all taxes charged against him on the Assessment Book, and require from him the Treasurer's receipt.

Section 9. On or before the first Monday of February in each year the Tax Collector must publish the delinquent list, not less than three consecutive times in a weekly newspaper published in the City of Sonoma, or in the County of Sonoma, together with a notice that unless the taxes delinquent, percentages and costs of publication are paid before the first Monday of March in each year, suit will be instituted in the proper Court for the collection of taxes delinquent, percentage and cost.

Section 10. On the first Monday of March in each year the City Clerk shall deliver to the City Attorney or to the person by the Board of Trustees appointed to act as such City Attorney, a certified copy of the delinquent tax list with the affidavit of the Collector thereto attached, that the said tax has not been paid, which must contain the names of the persons and a description of the property delinquent and the amount of taxes, percentages and costs due opposite each name and description, with the taxes due on personal property added to the taxes on real estate, whence the realestate is liable therefor, or the several taxes are due from the same person. Said attorney shall immediately thereafter bring suit in the name of the City of Sonoma in the proper Court for the collection of taxes delinquent, percentages and costs.

Section 11. In case suit shall be brought in the Superior Court upon a tax on real estate to sell such real estate for the purpose of paying such tax, percentage and costs, the attorney prosecuting such suit shall receive for his services twenty-five per cent of the amount of judgment obtained and the sum of twenty five dollars for each suit brought in addition to said percentage, to be taxed as costs in such suit, and the several amounts not to be paid to such attorney unless collected of the defendant in such Section 12. All Ordinances and parts of Ordinances in conflict with this Ordinance are hereby repealed. This Ordinance shall take effect from and after its passage.

Attest:
F. BREITENBACH, City Clerk.
Approved the 1st day of July, 1891.

THE Bravest 500 OF '61,

A Wonderful Book made from the records of the War Department.

COMPILED BY BVT. BRIG.-GEN. T. F. Rodenbough.

Of the 2,778,304 men enlisted in the Union Army and Navy, 1861-5, a little less than 500 were especially recognized by the War Dept., as coming under the Act of Congress, July 12, 1862, for distinguished bravery, which gave them the United States Medal of Honor.

Many of the stories, told by the heroes themselves, of how they won the high distinction, are extremely interesting. That the records of these deeds are almost unknown to their countrymen, but lie buried in the pigeon holes of the War Dept., and in the recesses of their own breasts, seems astonishing.

This book must find a wide sale, for it is full of incidents that will interest every old soldier in the land, and our boys will glory in it. It is an 8vo volume of over 500 pages, with nearly 100 excellent illustrations, made specially for the work.

It reeks of its time and deserves a place in the library of all who would not altogether forget the glorious past.

After strict and thorough examination in open court last Thursday, at Santa Rosa, Robert A. Poppe of this city was admitted to practice as an attorney and counselor at law by Judge R. F. Crawford of the Superior Court.

An Italian named Francisco, employed on the Mount Pisgah ranch, fell from a hay wagon last Monday and broke his left arm. The accident was caused by a bale of hay giving way and knocking him off the wagon and striking him while he was prostrate on the ground.

Ex-State Senator John S. Enos, formerly of this place, who has held the position of Chief Adjuster of the Coiners Department of the U. S. Mint at San Francisco the past year, has been discharged together with a large number of other employees. The reason assigned for the wholesale bouncing act is a political one.

One of the best bargains ever offered in the way of securing an improved farm in Sonoma Valley is advertised in these columns to day. The property is situated one mile south of town and consists of fifty-five acres of highly improved farming land. Nine acres are in vineyard and twelve acres in fine orchard. Both vineyard and orchard in full bearing. On the farm is a living spring of water, a good dwelling, barn and outhouses and every convenience of a model farm. Title perfect. This farm is offered for the low sum of $8,000. Ask any farmer in this valley if the preperty is worth the above sum and you will be answered that the property is cheap at that figure. For further particulars apply at this office.

The examination of E. E. Griffith and Severino the Italian, who engaged in a bout with six-shooters near this place a couple of weeks ago, took place last Monday before Judge Cheney. The evidence went to show that the men met in the road near Griffiths' farm, and after hot words weapons were drawn and both commenced shooting. Sol Carriger was an eye-witness to the affray and when put upon the witness stand testified that Severino was the first to draw his weapon. The testimony, however, was somewhat conflicting, Severino swearing just the opposite, and the Judge discharged both men, as there was no possibility in securing a conviction in the case of either.

The Union Hotel has changed hands. Mr. A. Zeller, the new proprietor, is an affable and accommodating gentleman and knows how to run an hotel. It is his intention to make the Union one of the best hotels north of San Francisco. The house will be supplied with all the conveiences that it is possible to secure in Sonoma. A well conducted commercial hotel is the life of a country town, as it makes business for everybody in the place. This being so, the new proprietor should be encouraged by our people in his efforts to build up a good business to the end that he may be better able to cater to the wants of those who visit Sonoma on business or pleasure.

Rev. A. Drahms, Chaplain at San Quentin prison, visited his farm near this place one day this week. For years that institution has not had a man so well fitted for the position of Chaplain as the present incumbent, and good religious work is being done among the prisoners, who, aside from church services on Sundays, are provided with a library which is in charge of Mr. Drahms. This library is kept up by private donations of books, magazines and periodicals. Any one sending all such to Mr. Drahms will be doing humanity a good turn. Literature can be sent to that gentleman by express, who will pay transportation charges.

DESTRUCTIVE GRASS FIRES.

Several Hundred Acres of Pasture and a Quantity of Fencing Destroyed.

On Saturday evening a spark from a passing locomotive on the Southern Pacific road ignited the grass alongside the track and communicating to the farms of Messrs. Harry Fisheer and Chas. Filippini destroyed nearly 200 acres of fine pasture and a quantity of fencing before it could be got under control. Mr. Fisheer was the heaviest loser, as the fire burned over 150 acres of fine feed, entailing a loss of several hundred dollars.

These fires are becoming very common of late. On the same evening a fire broke out on Sears' ranch from the same cause but was speedily extinguished. The following day while the up-train of the Southern Pacific was passing through the stock ranch of S. A. Ringstrom a spark lodged in the dry grass on one side of the track, and in an instant the grass was ablaze. Fortunately this fire, as in the case of the one on Sears' ranch, was discovered before it had made much headway and was speedily put out.

The Heated Term.

The people of Sonoma Valley have passed through this week one of the worst sieges of warm weather that they have ever experienced. Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday were regular scorchers, the thermometer in the coolest place in town registering on the afternoons of those days between 102 and 107 degrees in the shade.

The heat continued throughout the night and people slept with windows wide open. The temperature of the past week has ranged about as follows: At 4 A. M. 65 degrees; 6 A. M. 70 degrees; 9 A. M 85 degrees; 10 A. M. 90 degrees; 12 M. 100 degrees. After 12 o'clock the mercury has crept gradually up until about 3 o'clock, when 102 to 107 degrees was reached and there it has remained until 7 o'clock in the evening, when it has gradually receded, averaging throughout the night about 75 to 80 degrees. So far no sickness has resulted in this valley from the excessive heat and it is thought that little or no damage has resulted to fruit. To those unacquainted with the climate of Sonoma Valley we will state that during the summer months it is seldom that the 100-degree mark is reached, the average temperature being less than 80 degrees.

Drowned.

News of the sad drowning of Mrs. M. Smith, the widowed sister of Mr. Sam Agnew of this valley, reached that gentleman one day this week. The unfortunate lady, accompanied by a lady friend and a small child, attempted to cross a small stream in a two-horse wagon, twenty-five miles from Boise City, Idaho, the latter part of May. When in mid-stream one of the tugs broke and the wagon upset. Mrs. Smith was carried down stream by the swift current and drowned. Her lady companion, grasping her child with one hand and seizing one of the tugs with the other was dragged ashore by the horses and saved. The deceased lady was fifty years of age and leaves four fatherless children to mourn her unhappy fate.

The Country Newspaper.

THE local paper is thus commented upon by an exchange: Although a newspaper may boom a town through its editorial and news columns the critical investor looks to the advertising columns for substantial evidence of push and life. To him they are a thermometer, measuring the intensity of public warmth; they are the pulse which indicates the healthy or unhealthy condition of the collective body of people; they tell him what he wishes to know, whether or not the community is up to the times in business matters. Our cotemporary is right. A home seeker glancing at a paper from a town in which he intends to settle immediately "sizes up" the business men. If he finds a journal well filled with large advertisements he will believe that the town is prosperous, otherwise if he finds a paper with but very few advertisements in it, and a lot of dead matter he concludes that the place where it is published does a very small business A respectable newspaper is the best advertisement a town can have.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to clense the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

Miss Kate Jacoby and Mr. Emil Pohli were united in marriage by Rev. Horatio Stebbins last Wednesday evening at the Unitarian Church, San Francisco. Miss Agnes Durbing of this city was bridesmaid and Mr. John A. Sullivan best man. The interior of the church was decorated with choice flowers. After the ceremony the bridal party were driven to the Occidental Hotel, where a fine supper awaited them. Mr. and Mrs. Pohli left the following morning for an extended trip to Lake Tahoe.

The marriage of Miss May McCracken, formerly of this city, to Wm. Jenkins at the home of her parents in San Jose on Wednesday of last week was a very brilliant affair, and was witnessed by nearly one hundred invited guests. The bride wore an exquisite robe of crepe de chine. A bridal veil of illusion fell in fleecy folds from her coiffure. She carried a hand bouquet of white jasmin and maiden hair ferns. Among the guests were a number of Sonomaites. Many handsome presents were received by the happy couple.

THE CITY TRUSTEES.

The Board of City Trustees met in regular monthly session last Wednesday evening. All the members were present except Trustee Poppe, who was absent from town.

On motion of Trustee Wegner, L. Litzius was called to the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and approved Trustee Bulotti reported that the planking on the Napa-street bridge was nearly worn out, and that the replacing of a few planks at a time was a waste of money. The Board thereupon ordered the Street Committee to put the same in good order

G. S. Harris was allowed $50 for sprinkling the streets during 1891.

Clerk Breitenbach read his report of the financial condition of the city for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891, and upon motion the same was received and placed on file.

Ordinance No. 41, establishing a system for the assessment, levy and collection of city taxes according to the new State law, passed to a final reading by a unanimous vote of the Board and the same was approved by the President pro tem. Trustee Litzius.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

J. M. Cheney, rent	5.00
H. H. Granice, printing	9.50
G. de Bernardini, labor	33.55
Lee Bulotti, labor	35.75
G. W. Sparks, salary, etc	18.00
E. Wegner, money advanced	30.50

The Board then adjourned.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, JULY 4, 1891.

(Concluded From First Page.)

Vincent, an iron steamer, of Hartlepool, England. She was just at the end of a voyage from Calcutta to New York. She was well laden with merchandise, and besides a crew of thirty-two men she carried five Hindoo passengers. The latter naturally received the first attention of the life savers, and the more especially because the captain of the steamship believed that his vessel could be worked off the sands before another morning, and he therefore chose to remain on board with the crew.

After what seemed an age to the excursionists on shore, the surf boat was seen returning. The men gathered at the water's edge and in it to assist in effecting a landing, and the women crowded down behind them. The boat had been successfully beached, and four of the passengers had been lifted out, when a great roller dashed some of the men down and began to swing the boat around. The fifth passenger, a woman, fell forward in her fright. One of the crew dashed into the receding water, seized her and struggled with her in his arms to the shore. Few noted the deed in the general activity and excitement, but Nellie saw it, for the man with the living burden was Henry Martin. Not stopping at the beach, he plunged off through the fog and across the sands toward the station, a half mile away.

"Henry!" called Nellie, as he struggled along, but his form was already dim in the fog, and if he heard her he did not reply. She would have followed but that like others she was called upon to help care for the rescued people, all of whom were conveyed as speedily as possible to the station. When Nellie reached the station the woman saved by Henry Martin was there, but Henry had gone back to the surf boat. How he contrived to carry his burden so far may best be explained by the heroes of the life saving service, who know not till the strain is over that they have been enduring and accomplishing miracles.

It was then dark, and the volunteers built a great fire and lay down upon the sand beside it to await a signal from the steamship should she begin to go to pieces. No signal came, but how the men by the fire waited all night, and went out next morning through the heavy surf to the ship again; how men came from Blue Point and Point of Woods stations; how life buoys were rigged; how the captain refused to abandon his ship; how other crews put out in boats across the surf, and all were driven back; how the captain had to yield to the inevitable, and, after three days of almost constant work, how he and all his crew were saved—these things and much more are all set down in official records of the government. For me it only remains to tell of a young man, haggard, unkempt and weary, who left the station at last with something almost of regret in his heart that the sea had not swallowed him, and yet something also of manly pride in the struggle he had endured; who crossed the sand bar and went toward the bay, where his companions had told him a boat was waiting to take him back to Babylon. This young man plodded along heavily, wholly unlike the giant who had battled with wind and waves, and sands and fog, and he did not look up until startled by a woman's voice close by. It was Nellie, for when she had seen him coming she had run from the Sawyer's sloop to meet him. And when they both had gone aboard, Nellie blushing and excited, and Henry dazed but strangely happy, young Jim shoved off from the dock, and taking the tiller said:

"I'm all the crew there is, Mart, and I guess in this breeze I can get you home O. K. If I can't I'll tell you to help me out. You and Nell sit down and say what you please. I sha'n't see anything but the wind and the peak of the mains'l."

FREDERICK R. BURTON.

Brown—Not much. He put one in my pocket.—Epoch.

Across the Deep, to the Far West

On steamboats, cars and stage-coaches, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is carried as the most important item in the materia medica of the traveling public. It deprives vitiated, brackish water of its hurtful properties and execrable flavor, counteracts the pernicious effects upon the stomach of bad or indigestible food, remedies cramps, heartburn and wind upon the stomach. It is a fine defense against malarial disorders, nullifies the effects of excessive heat, cold and damp, relieves sick headache, and is an incomparable cure for costiveness and biliousness. The fatigue of travel often tells most disastrously upon invalids and convalescents, occasionally to such an extent as to jeopardise life. Persons in feeble health, apprehensive of bad effects from travel, will, if provided with the Bitters, be far less likely to have their fears realized.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma and all throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. NOYES, 820 Powers' Block Rochester N. Y.

Electric Bitters is the great alternative and Tonic and acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, Blotches, Boils and gives a good complexion. Sold at Ed. "German Syrup"

Croup. We have selected two or three lines from letters freshly received from parents who have given German Syrup to their children in the emergencies of Croup. You will credit these, because they come from good, substantial people, happy in finding what so many families lack—a medicine containing no evil drug, which mother can administer with confidence to the little ones in their most critical hours, safe and sure that it will carry them through.

ED. L. WILLITS, of Alma, Neb., I give it to my children when troubled with Croup and never saw any preparation act like it. It is simply miraculous.

Mrs. JAS. W. KIRK, Daughters' College, Harrodsburg, Ky. I have depended upon it in attacks of Croup with my little daughter, and find it an invaluable remedy.

Fully one-half of our customers are mothers who use Boschee's German Syrup among their children. A medicine to be successful with the little folks must be a treatment for the sudden and terrible foes of childhood, whooping cough, croup, diphtheria and the dangerous inflammations of delicate throats and lungs. ⊕

THE Bravest 500 OF '61,

A Wonderful Book made from the records of the War Department.

Of the 2,778,304 men enlisted in the Union Army and Navy, 1861-5, a little less than 500 were especially recognized by the War Dept., as coming under the Act of Congress, July 12, 1862, for distinguished bravery, which gave them the United States Medal of Honor.

Many of the stories, told by the heroes themselves, of how they won the high distinction, are extremely interesting. That the records of these deeds are almost unknown to their countrymen, but lie buried in the pigeon holes of the War Dept., and in the recesses of their own breasts, seems astonishing.

This book must find a wide sale, for it is full of incidents that will interest every old soldier in the land, and our boys will glory in it. It is an 8vo volume of over 500 pages, with nearly 100 excellent illustrations, and is especially for the work.

It reeks of its time and deserves a place in the library of all who would not altogether forget the glorious past.
